Rejoining the pension scheme

Membership of the pension scheme

Your employer continues to offer you membership of the Local Government Pension Scheme and if you choose to become a member your employer will make a contribution towards the cost of providing your pension benefits. Throughout local government there are over one million members of the scheme and they will receive an inflation-proof income, either to improve their standard of living in retirement or to offset the worst effects of financial hardship if they become unable to work. Not surprisingly a survey in late 1994 found that the majority of local government employees questioned valued the pension scheme more highly than job security or pay rates. Even for short periods of employment membership can be attractive due to the comprehensive nature of the scheme benefits and the availability of tax relief on contributions paid.

Alternative arrangements

As your employer subscribes to the view that the value of good occupational pension provision should be widely communicated, you are urged to read the information on the reverse of this leaflet. If, after reading it, you think that you would like any further information about any aspect of pension provision, please contact the staff in the council's pensions office.

The pensions office is part of the council's finance directorate and is located in Room 208 on floor two of County Hall above the customer service centre. Telephone numbers are 823627/823660. See also the pensions websites – <http://wightnet2000.iow.gov.uk/directorates/finance/pensions/default.asp> <http://www.iwight.com/council/pensions>

The security of the scheme - your quadruple guarantee

The Local Government Pension Scheme is a statutory scheme, the benefits are set out in law. The scheme is also 'contracted-out' and must therefore always meet further legal requirements in relation to benefit levels. The Isle of Wight Council Pension Fund exists to pay the benefits and this must meet strict legal solvency requirements. Even if the fund had insufficient resources your employer has a legal obligation to ensure that funds are available to pay the benefits.

Existing alternative provision

If you have a personal pension, or stakeholder pension, you may contribute to it whilst you are a member of the Local Government Pension Scheme. It will, however, normally be possible to transfer your personal investment into the scheme if you so wish. This will also be the case if you have preserved rights in another occupational pension scheme. If you provide details of another pension arrangement on the attached declaration form, the pensions office will request details of your accrued entitlement from your provider or past employer. No action will be taken to transfer your rights until you have been made aware of the implications and have confirmed that you wish to proceed.

The scheme at a glance

Employee contributions are banded as in the following general table.

Band	Range (Annual full-time equivalent pay)	Contribution rate
1	£0 - £12,600	5.5%
2	More than £12,601 up to £14,700	5.8%
3	More than £14,701 up to £18,900	5.9%
4	More than £18,901 up to £31,500	6.5%
5	More than £31,501 up to £42,000	6.8%
6	More than £42,001 up to £78,700	7.2%
7	More than £78,700	7.5%

The contribution rate will be based on your annual full-time equivalent pay as at 1 April 2009, or commencement of employment if later, and that contribution rate is applicable throughout the year. The salary bandings will be increased each April in line with rises in the Retail Prices Index.

If you have more than one employment, each employment will be assessed and treated separately.

Paying for your benefits

- You contribute the appropriate percentage of your wages or salary
- If you pay tax, you receive tax relief on your contributions
- Most employees pay lower National Insurance as scheme members
- Your employer makes a significant contribution towards the cost of your benefits

The benefits provided

- A pension based upon your 'final' pay - 1/60th of pay for each year of membership
- An option to buy a tax-free lump sum with part of your pension upon retirement (within Inland Revenue rules)
- An enhanced pension if you have to retire because of permanent ill-health
- Early payment of benefits if your employer requires you to retire after age 55
- A tax-free lump sum for your dependants if you die before retirement, usually three years' pay
- Pensions for your dependants
- A preserved pension if you leave before retirement
- The opportunity to transfer the total value of your accrued rights to another pension scheme or provider
- Full inflation-proofing to pensions in payment and to preserved benefits

Certain benefits provided by the scheme are subject to qualifying conditions. These are set out in the guide to the scheme which is provided to all new members shortly after joining the scheme. The guide is, however, available at any time upon request to the pensions office.

Providing information to the pensions office

Attached to this leaflet is a form which you should detach and complete if you wish to become a scheme member. As your employer is required to ask a new member to provide information in order that an entitlement to count a previous period of scheme membership can be established, you should complete the rest of the form. It is most important that you supply full and accurate information as any omission or inaccuracy may prejudice your rights.
