

The Pipeline Safety Regulations 1996

The pipeline Safety Regulations 1996, are a means of ensuring that Major Accident Hazard Pipelines are designed, constructed and operated safely and thus provide a means of securing pipeline integrity. The Pipeline Safety Regulations are enforced by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) who have further information on the topic on their website.